

Out of the West Came Pilate

76 76 D

Out of the west came Pilate on horseback, flags unfurled, to hold Rome's power inviolate, unchallenged in the world.
He came to keep things peaceful,
preserve the status quo, to keep the locals mindful of how life ought to go.

The eastern gate met Jesus, upon a donkey's back to show he meant to save us—a calculated act!
The peace he brought subverted the status of this place where God had been abandoned in favor of false truce.

With Pilate came foundations, accountable and sure,
to make these messy nations one empire, stable, pure.
Authority brought order, unquestioned, quick, and clear, each well-seen, well-known border enforced by gold and spear.

(Continued on next page)

But Jesus knew true concord was oneness with God's will,
and wept, for we could be more than what we buy and sell.
A riot in the Temple,
 creative disarray,
was proof that he brought trouble—this rebel had to die.

What convoy might we follow?
 Are strength and certainty the qualities we value?
 Or would we dare to try the path of brave surrender, sedition siring loss,
when we share Christ's meek splendor by taking up our cross?

Text by James Hart Brumm
Topics: Discipleship, Palm Sunday
Source: Luke 19:28–48
Possible tunes: AURELIA; PASSION CHORALE; ST. THEODULPH; WEBB © 2009 by Wayne Leupold Editions, Inc.